Like every year, this year too, the World Intellectual Property Day was celebrated in the campus with much enthusiasm and creative engagements. However, the competitive events for IP Day 2018 had to be organized on the eve of 26th April, 2018. The much-awaited quizzing event, the IP Quiz, was conducted by Mr. Ashutosh Das, a TU alumnus, that was based on issues related to intellectual property and its associated rights. The exercise exposed the participants not only to the theme of this year "Powering change: Women in innovation and creativity", but also to small nitty-gritties of intellectual property in our lives, that we come across regularly, but often fail to recognize due to ignorance. 26 teams participated in the event and two teams were adjudged winner and runners up respectively.

Invited experts from industries like Hindustan Unilever, IBM, Permacel Ltd., ONGC, etc. deliberated upon the latest innovations in their respective sectors. They also participated in discussions on facilities that are expected for working in collaboration with universities. Entire focus of these deliberations was concentrated around facilitating pro-industry research in the region.

The day was also marked with participation in the Innovative Idea Competition and slogan writing competition where the innovation based on a 'mobile robot capable of sensing hazardous gas for military application' was adjudged the winner.
