From VC's Desk

I am really happy to note that the 10th volume of our Newsletter is being published on the happy occasion of the XV Convocation of the University. I am sure the readers would get a fair idea about the academic and co-curricular activities and the achievements of our students, faculty and employees from the write ups printed in this issue of the Newsletter.

The Newsletter also rightly highlights our humble efforts to make meaningful contribution to the society.

The editorial board has tried to make this publication as informative as possible. I thank all the members of the Media Cell for bringing out the Newsletter in a befitting manner.

- Madan M.Sarma

Editorial

Since the last issue (April 2017), Tezpur University has witnessed a number of significant developments. On the research front, the University's "h-Index" has gone up to 55 while on the global ranking, the University has secured the 34th position under Generation "Y" in the Times Higher Education World Young University Rankings (2017) that ranks the universities under 50 years of age worldwide. However, in the domestic NIRF India Rankings 2017, the University's position slipped significantly from last year's. In order to regain the glory in the domestic ranking and to enhance its position in the world ranking, the students, faculty and non-teaching staff members are working hard in all areas concerning the University's growth.

One of the major shifts in the University's administration that occurred during this period is the change of guard at the Vice Chancellor's office. While Prof. Mihir Kanti Chaudhuri relinquished office on May 20, 2017, after completing two full tenures as Vice Chancellor, Prof. Madan M. Sarma, the senior-most professor of the University, took over charge of this apex office on the following day.

As the responsibility of publishing the Newsletter has been given to the Media Cell from the current issue onwards, we would like to appeal to all concerned to extend full support and cooperation so that the coming issues of the University's mouthpiece meet the expectations of the readers. We take this opportunity to thank all those who extended support and help in bringing out the present issue of the Newsletter.

- Sujit Muktan and other students of the Department Mass Communication & Journalism have carried out voluntary awareness activities like teaching in schools, showing videos on sanitation (hand washing) to school students located in interior villages, facilitating community members into participatory audio and video production, etc.
- Faculty and research scholars of the Department Mass Communication & Journalism have voluntarily conducted a day-long media workshop with the students of Army Public School, Missamari in the month of November, 2017.

Arsiron Nilogon and Fluoride Nilogon Technologies

Arsiron Nilogon and Fluoride Nilogon are two highly efficient, safe, low-cost and simple methods for removal of arsenic and excess fluoride from contaminated drinking water. The methods are based on oxidation-coagulation at optimized pH and phosphoric acid-crushed limestone treatment, respectively.

Both methods have been developed recently by the Research Group of Dr. Robin Kumar Dutta of the Department of Chemical Sciences, Tezpur University, that have been gaining popularity at the small community level like households and schools as well as large community level in Assam and some other states. Both methods have been published in journals of high repute and also patented.
